wedi has won not one but two prizes for the wedi Sanwell shower wall module: the ZVSHK product award in the competition "Bathroom comfort for generations" and the iF DESIGN AWARD 2023 in the category "Bathrooms and wet rooms".

The Sanwell shower wall module with integrated technology was introduced to the market at the end of last year. It is equally suitable for installation on the existing substrate as a fixed wall or as a free-standing shower partition. The special features are the pre-installed cold and hot water pipes as well as the integrated Hansgrohe iBox allowing for more than 200 thermostatic mixer designs.

The ZVSHK Product Award was presented at this year's ISH. The high practical quality, the easy installation and the cost-effective options for individual configuration convinced the jury of six experts.

wedi already celebrated an award at the beginning of the year. The wedi Top Line was recognised for its outstanding design in the materials & surfaces category at the German Design Awards.

The iF DESIGN AWARD 2023 has been awarded once a year since 1954 by the world's oldest independent design institution and is one of the most recognised design awards in the world. This was once again demonstrated this year by the flood of applications: the independent jury of 133 international experts had to review almost 11,000 submissions from 56 countries in order for the coveted seal of approval to be awarded.
